

OPEN AT NIGHTS FOR OPERA SALE

Chamber of Commerce Arranges to Take Care of Purchasers.

DEMAND IS GROWING

Out-of-Town Interest Is Hunch to Tulsans to Get Busy Now.

In order to accommodate patrons of the Tulsa grand opera season, October 20 and 21, those in charge of the advance sale at the Chamber of Commerce have arranged to stay open nights and on Sundays until the remaining tickets are disposed of.

The sales yesterday almost broke the record, totaling $1,000. The next best day's receipts amounted to $1,200. Clarence H. Douglas, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, arranged yesterday to have the tickets on sale in the evenings and on Sundays for at least the coming week. Curious men and women will be on hand to accommodate purchasers.

On Sunday, beginning today, the tickets will be on sale at the Chamber of Commerce from 9 to 12 a. m. and from 1:30 to 4 p. m. The office will also remain open each evening this week until 9 or 10 o'clock.

Stuart M. Hamilton, who is in charge of the branch advance sale in 15 communities in this state, returned last night after his first week's tour.

"I found the cultured people in every town I have visited fully alert to the situation and cognizant of the fact that a stupendous event is to take place in Tulsa," said Mr. Hamilton. "In Wagoner, Vinita and Claremore I discovered a large coterie of people who were glad of the opportunity to buy their opera tickets direct. In Muskogee much interest has been aroused and I expect to dispose of two or three hundred tickets in that city Monday at the Kiroh Music company store."

Warning to Tulsans.

"Tulsans have responded liberally," said Colonel Douglas yesterday, "and I desire to remind them that they should make their reservations without delay. The fact that fully 50 per cent of the purchasers have taken season tickets indicates that the attendance will be capacity for both 'Carmen' and 'Il Trovatore.' I hope to see the $15,000 mark reached by the end of this week and if that happens the entire house will be sold out by the last day of September."

In addition to the widespread publicity campaign in behalf of the opera season, thousands of leaflets containing pictures of the stars and descriptions of the operas have been mailed to all sections of the state. The Nye-chka club has sent announcements of the event to the presidents of every music club in Oklahoma.

In "Carmen" on Monday night, October 10, the stars will be Geraldine Farrar, Helen Stanley, Rita Farnia,

RECRUITS FOR TULSA'S SECOND COMPANY IN TWO MONTHS

The first ambulance company, Oklahoma national guard, is Tulsa's second contribution to Uncle Sam's fighting force in two months. When the call came for the Oklahoma national guard to go to the border, Tulsa organized a company of infantry in a week's time. Presently Adjutant General Earl O. N. G. asked local physicians with previous military training to organize an ambulance company. They have recruited 116 men and have been training them for more than two weeks, although their equipment has not yet arrived. It is the first ambulance company to be organized under the terms of the new Hay bill. The men will be on salary whether in active service or not and Tulsa will be their permanent headquarters. They will serve the troops of five southwestern states. Their equipment will include 18 of the new motor ambulances that the government has purchased. The men are quartered temporarily in Convention hall. The high school campus is serving as drill grounds for the time being. The above photo was made by Clarence Jack and shows the new Gallatin building in the background. The officers of the company are Captain H. G. LaRue and Lieutenants Ferguson, Capps and Hurd. B. B. Spillman, attached to the regular army recruiting station here, has rendered valuable service as drillmaster.

Lauren Maratore, Clarence Whitehill and Leon Rothier.

In "Il Trovatore" on Tuesday night, October 11, the principal roles will be played by Emma Deslin, Louisa Homer, Alma Peterson, Morgan Kingston, Giovanni Polese and Constantin Nivola.

Teofanto Campanini, general and musical director of the company, probably is the greatest man in this line of artistic endeavor in the world. The orchestra of 75 musicians will 30,000 be a feature worth going many miles to see. The ballet, under the leadership of Albertina Rasch, will be something that has never before been witnessed in grand opera outside of New York, Chicago and Boston.

WITCH HAZEL IS OUT OF VOGUE.

Witch-hazel now is the popular lotion in Barber Shops.

For many years bay rum was used in all barber shops as a soothing lotion following the shave. It was also used as a sort of dryer after the shampoo and caused many to write in the chair when applied after a good massage. Despite these facts it continued to be the king pin of all applications. Several years ago an enterprising individual, knowing the properties of witch-hazel, began to advertise this liquid as a substitute for bay rum, telling of the fact that witch-hazel had the same qualities as bay rum and was much easier to "take."

The customers of the various barber shops read the advertisement, and so did the barbers. The result was that nine out of ten of the patrons of barber shops asked for witch-hazel instead of bay rum and the latter commodity rapidly sank into oblivion. Today, according to the managers of barber shops in big hotels and elsewhere, witch-hazel is much more popular than bay rum.—New York Herald.

FAIR WILL OPEN ON TIME TUESDAY

Every Department of Free Exposition Will Be in Shape.

MANY FREE ACTS

Open-Air Attractions Numerous; Townships Hold Picnics.

"The grounds and buildings are in much better shape than last year and we will have more space for the exhibits," was the comment of N. H. Graham, secretary of the Tulsa County Free Fair association, last night after a strenuous day at the fairgrounds.

The big free fair will open promptly at noon Tuesday. By that time every department will be filled.

"The big addition this year," continued the secretary, "will be the live stock pavilion. Three whole buildings will be filled with thoroughbred horses, cattle, sheep and swine. We have built stalls and pens in the buildings and have made the surroundings absolutely sanitary. Concrete wash pens and watering troughs have been built between the buildings. Tulsa county has taken wonderful strides in the live stock industry in the past year and some of the best cattle and horses in the United States will be shown at the fair. The applications for space already received indicate that every building will be filled to capacity."

The same crowded conditions will prevail in all of the other buildings. The automobile pavilion is just about ready for the opening now. The decorations were completed several days ago. The prospective purchaser of a car will find a veritable feast in this building and men will be on hand to explain all the features of the new models.

Even if there is a heavy rain the grounds will not be injured. There will be spacious gravel paths for spectators. No vehicles will be allowed inside the gates.

The farm products building will be veritably filled to the roof. In every township in the county picnics were held yesterday for the purpose of assembling exhibits for the fair. These will be brought in today and tomorrow and given their places. At each picnic the attendance was big and hundreds of farmers and their families are planning on coming to the fair and having a big time. The individual exhibits will include everything raised on the farm, even to the babies who will be entered in the better babies contest. The boys will take part in the pig and corn club contests and the girls will have entries in the canning, cooking and sewing divisions.

Galaxy of Color.

The Kaffireen "palace" is a palace in reality. Bunting and flags hang from every rafter. Dozens of merchants and manufacturers are building their booths. All sorts of novelties will be given away. The better babies contest will also take place in this building, while the public school exhibits will have one side of the structure.

The free attractions this year will be as good as can be seen at any county fair in the United States. There will be something doing every minute for both young and old. The big spectacular feature, of course, will be the daily balloon ascension. A lady acrobat will make the flight each afternoon. The first day she will use two parachutes in descending, the
